LONG ISLAND HOUNDS HAVE A NEW MASTER

A. H. Higginson in Command at Meadow Brook Is the Latest Report.

COLLIER RULES IN JERSEY

Friendly Rivalry Expected, as Both Are Keen Judges of Dogs and Horses.

With the report that A. H. Higginson, master of the Middlesex Foxbounds, South Lincoln, Mass., is going to hunt the Meadow Brook Foxbounds, Long Island, there may be expected much friendly ivalry between the masters of the Meadow master. Both men are keen judges of foxhounds. Mr. Higginson has generally foxhounds. Mr. Higginson has generally had a leaning toward hounds bred and hunted by Mr. Fernie in Leicestershire. England. There is an English pack and an American pack hunted by the Meadow Brook. Foxhall P. Keene, more or less, provided the present Meadow Brook English pack.

The West Monmouth, N. J., pack of West Monmouth, N. J., pack of foxhounds is made up of a good and even tot. Robert J. Collier, like his father, has a good eye for a horse and a hound. The love of foxhunting is Mr. Collier's and he carries the horn for as good a looking lot of hounds as may be seen in New Jersey. These hounds are full of the English type and that type is a hound with a long head—a good sensible head—a long and deep foreface with plenty of lips; his ears have been ironed. The throats of these hounds are moderately clean; there are enough of those flaws left that denote the ever glorious voice of a foxhound. The bodies of Mr. Collier's hounds are strong, well ribbed, loined and the depth of brisket is good, All these makes, shapes and formations go to make up the hound that shall hunt and run his game to earth or death.

Like all English bred hounds the West
